

DEVELOP JAMES RIVER, HARBORS MAN ADVISES

Cornish Bailey Tells Rotarians Patriotic Citizens Must Do Part.

DECLARES RAILROADS PROFIT
And Business, He Asserts, Gains Immense, Since Rivalry Between Two Transportation Systems Tends to Lower the Rates.

If Richmond is to continue along progressive lines and the business men of the city wish it to become the leading city of its size in the country, the efforts of the Chamber of Commerce and city officials toward development of James River must be encouraged, and every patriotic citizen must place his shoulder to the wheel, according to Cornish Bailey, field secretary of the National Rivers and Harbors Congress, with headquarters in Washington, who delivered an instructive and interesting address before the Rotary club at its meeting in the Hotel Richmond last night.

Mr. Bailey pointed with both hands to the necessity of water transportation, if the city is to grow and its business is to prosper. He challenged the statement that the railway interests are crippled by water transportation. On the contrary, he said, the railway profit largely by the development of waterways. Not only do railroads prosper, he said, but the business interests gain immeasurably for the rivalry between the two transportation activities causes lower rates, thus building up the business and giving more to the two systems and permitting the people to take advantage of the cutting of rates between the carriers.

Points to City of Pittsburgh.

As proof of this assertion he mentioned Pittsburgh, a city, which he said, is the peer, commercially, of any city in the world. "This condition would not exist," said Mr. Bailey, "were it not for the development of the Monongahela and the Ohio Rivers. While the waterway transportation develops and keeps down the rates, the railroads reap a harvest through the increased business. He referred also to the great English ports and their fight with Germany, and showed that Germany had developed its waterways and could do business cheaper, thus forcing much development along similar lines in England.

The opening and development of every stream, according to Mr. Bailey, means more business for the railroads, and it means much more in that the opening of such streams gives prestige to the various localities. He said his organization had the interests of Richmond at heart, and every effort was being made to get larger appropriations for the development of the James.

"This money, if spent advisedly," said Mr. Bailey, "soon makes Richmond a deep-water port. We want to see this desire consummated. The river has been neglected by the business men as a whole. Many communities in Washington, but they embrace practically the same little coterie of men. What is needed is sincere and earnest cooperation, and if this is gained, there will be small trouble in getting the aid of Congress, and the whole body of business men get behind the movement."

Visit Tappanahannock Next Month.
Vice-President Ben Wilson presided in the absence of President John C. White, who is in Atlantic City on his vacation. Mr. Wilson directed the 150 members present to telegraph their president at his expense, expressing their hope that he may come back with improved health. He announced that September 9 had been fixed upon as the tentative date for the proposed trip of the club to the Tappanahannock. He also announced that a large delegation of Rotarians would leave for Fredericksburg on the afternoon of August 21, when the charter of the new club will be placed before the present. George McManis stated that he expected to have more than 100 Rotarians in the party, which will leave Richmond about 4 o'clock and return in the evening.

Rotarian Marchmont then introduced what he termed a "new quality" to take the place of that headed by Preston Belvin at the last meeting. "This," he explained, "would stand over by the members and keep perfectly quiet while the other members of the club sang a series of popular songs. The voices of the new quality will sound better than any other, and will be heard in that way." Mr. Marchmont then called upon the following "silver-tongued vocalists" to form the quartet: Jeter Jones, Garland Hood, Frank Taylor, Alvin Smith, Norman Call, Henry Street, George Marchmont, Bill Jara and Myrtle Moore. "This quartet," he said, "refused to obey instructions, and it is Henry Schwartz, who is in the party, who will sing with a fine explanation of the vocalists. Some real music was rendered by the quartet during the singing of the popular songs. This group of famous colored singers sang also a series of "old-time" songs to "Roll Jordan, Roll."

Allen J. Saville had charge of the program. He introduced the speaker and led in all the applause, assisted by Henry H. Smith, Judge Hicks, Bobby Wain, and H. McFadden. Thomas McAdams delivered the gavel most effectively. The meeting was to have been held on the roof, but the "regular afternoon rainstorm" drove the Rotarians indoors and the exercises were held in the mezzanine.

THOMAS J. TODD OUT FOR COUNTY OFFICE
Will Be Candidate for Henrico Treasurer in Democratic Primary Next August.

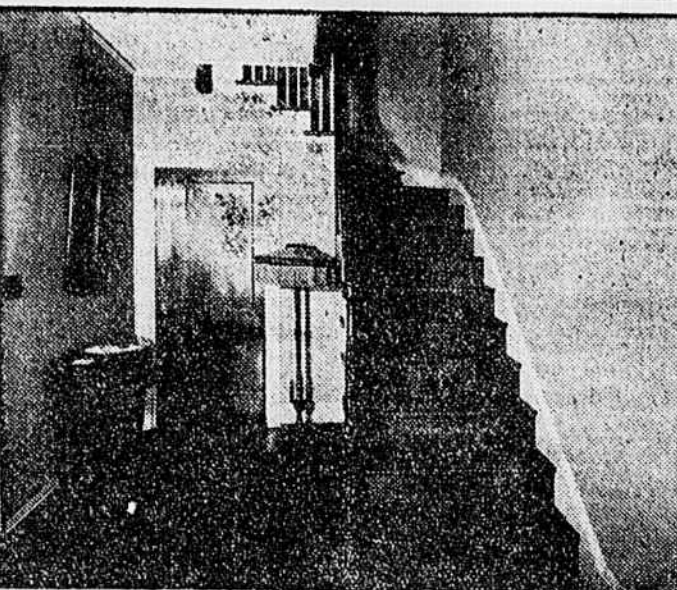

Thomas J. Todd, former deputy treasurer of Henrico County, who recently resigned, yesterday announced that he would be a candidate for the office in the Democratic primary next August.

Mr. Todd had been deputy treasurer of Henrico County for more than seventeen years and was appointed when L. H. Kemp, Jr., was appointed to fill the unexpired term of his father. Mr. Todd said he tendered his resignation when Mr. Kemp was named by Judge Scott of Henrico County Circuit Court, because he had "been holding the bag while somebody else reaped the profits," and that he was tired of it.

Mr. Todd was deputy for eight years under L. H. Kemp, Jr., and was expecting to eventually become treasurer, he said.

The term of L. H. Kemp, Jr., expires December 11, 1923.

RECEPTION HALL, ROSEWOOD AVE. HOME

Interior view of one of the "Better Homes Electrical," visted by thousands of Richmonders since they were opened Sunday before last.

THRONG OF 50,000 INSPECTS "BETTER HOMES" ELECTRICAL

Lovers of Beautiful and Artistic Have Found Exhibition an Inspiration—Number of Out-of-Town Visitors to the Demonstration Large.

Bad weather for the first time interfered with the "Better Homes" Electrical exhibition, but not before the total of the ten days was brought to an even 50,000. Large numbers of visitors inspected the new homes in the afternoon before the daily storm came up, while there were several hundred out during the night in spite of the steady downpour, many stating that they were glad of the opportunity to browse through the handsomely outfitted homes without being hurried or having a crowd detract from the home atmosphere which is an integral part of the demonstration.

The better homes movement enters on the last half of the twenty-day exhibition this afternoon. The first ten days saw a total slightly in excess of 50,000 adults visit 230 Rosewood Avenue and the Stoafoal Courts property, where forty-one electrical business concerns are co-operating with The Times and Evening Dispatch in giving what has been freely described as the greatest civic movement in a generation.

Lovers of the beautiful and artistic have found the exhibition an inspiration. It is serving its purpose of creating the house-loving instinct in hundreds and promoting the ideal of other hundreds. While commercialism has been strictly taboo in the demonstration, some co-operating in the demonstration have felt the results in their business. From all parts of the State laudatory words have been received, especially in regard to the spirit in which the movement was conceived and carried out. While the demonstration has been a lesson to home-makers, it has been even a greater lesson to the merchants themselves as they see what can be accomplished when everybody enters a movement unselfishly and with suspicious rivalry forgotten.

To achieve the result from the "Better Homes Electrical" movement, the furnishing and equipping of the two houses was left entirely to one man, who was given permission to take whatever he desired from the stocks of the firms co-operating in the demonstration. From cellar to attic the houses are equipped from local stocks.

The number of out-of-town visitors to the demonstration has been a large one, although the total will not be known until the cards are checked. Thousands, however, have failed to sign the blanks for the purpose, but from the huge batch already turned in, many valuable hints and suggestions have been received by the collaborators.

Summon Firemen; Police Seize Still

Pedestrians Turn In Alarm for Flames in Wood Street.

Response to an alarm of fire yesterday afternoon at 132 Wood Street led to discovery by firemen of a 150-gallon still, fourteen barrels of mash and a keg of corn whisky in the city's negro tenement district.

When flames broke from an upper window of a two-story dwelling at the Wood Street address, pedestrians summoned the Fire Department. Finding a still operating at the thoroughfare fronting the building and flames of the second story, firemen sent in a call for police.

Hurrying to the scene in traffic department cars, Captain Samuels, Lieutenant Green, Sergeant Goldsby and Policeman Hooker dismantled the fire-besieged distillery while firemen battled with chemicals flames.

Attracted by the clang of the city's fire apparatus and police patrols, several hundred people crowded into the street to witness the scene, and for a time hindered traffic and handicapped police in removing the illicit plant.

After a twenty-minute battle, the fire was extinguished. Damage to the dwelling was estimated at $500. Two four-burner oil stoves were used in operating the plant, and these were assigned by firemen as the cause of the blaze. The still and its accessories were removed by police patrol to the First Station, where the material is held for evidence. In the evening, warrants were issued by police last night, and an early arrest of several negroes is expected.

DROWNED WOMAN'S BODY EXPECTED HERE TODAY

Miss Maude Seay, Teacher, and Fiance Meet Death in Surf.

The body of Miss Maude Seay, teacher in Highland Park, who was drowned with James C. King, a young man, near Cape Charles, Monday afternoon, will arrive in Richmond today for reburial in the ill-fated teacher's late home in Brington, King and Queen County.

News of the dual drowning and narrow escape of Joseph D. King, an official of the Pennsylvania Railroad, father of the young man, from a similar fate in an attempt to rescue the young couple, was received here by Mrs. C. B. Gwathmey, 1305 Victor Street, aunt of Miss Seay, yesterday.

Caught in a treacherous undertow, the young woman and her 23-year-old sweetheart, were carried to their death, while other bathers imperiled their lives in efforts to rescue them.

The body of Miss Seay was recovered several hours later in a few feet of water near shore. Efforts to recover the body of her fiance have proven unsuccessful, and it is a question of life guards from a beach near the scene of drowning that the body has been washed seaward. Mr. King was from Cape Charles and was a graduate from the law school of Washington and Lee University.

Arrangements for football prospects for the 1922 season at the Virginia Military Institute were received at a meeting of the young men, from a night at Motor Inn. A chicken dinner was served and an orchestra played throughout the evening. A number of alumni, undergraduates, and guests were present. R. P. James, class of '19, delivered the report on the coming football season. A committee was appointed with J. W. Tinsley, '16, as chairman, to arrange for a special training camp from Richmond to the Virginia-V. M. I. game at Charlottesville in October.

LIENS INITIATE CANDIDATES.
The Royal Order of Lions, Den No. 1028, held its regular meeting Monday night, August 7, at Henry Hall, and the meeting was an exceptionally fine one and many new candidates were introduced. At the next club meeting, August 14, there will be approximately fifty candidates obligated, and the degree team will be selected from the members present. Members are requested to make every effort to be present at the next meeting.

State Fair Entries.
More than 200 entries have already been made in the department of the Virginia State Fair, which begins in October. One entry is from Jackson, Miss.; three are from Kansas City and Independence, Mo., and the Buckland Hall Farms, owned by Mitchell Harrison, of Nokesville, will be represented by a string of exhibits which fill three pages of entry blanks.

Bond Issue Authorized.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—The Virginia and Western Railroad obtained Interstate Commerce Commission authority today to issue $1,000,000 in percent bonds. The securities will be either sold or turned over to the Virginia Railway in consideration of money advances to meet the cost of constructing a 14.5-mile line to Glen Rogers, in Wyoming County, West Virginia.

Harry C. Tucker Ill.
Harry C. Tucker, of 15 North Addison Street, is seriously ill with typhoid fever at the Retreat for the Sick. His condition was reported as easier last night, although he is still unable to receive his friends.

Welfare Clerk on Vacation.
Wyndham Wright, chief clerk in the office of the Director of Public Welfare, is on his vacation. He will spend this week in Louisa County with relatives, and will report back at his office next Monday.

Colored Hospital Workers to Meet.
Meeting of the persons interested in the new Sarah G. Jones Hospital will be held at the headquarters of the hospital, 404 East Baker Street, Friday.

The meeting was called for the purpose of electing a new president and to confirm arrangements made to transfer the property held by the old Richmond Hospital to the new association. Arrangements have also been made to employ an expert campaigner who will direct the work of raising the necessary funds to build a new modern hospital plant on the site of the old hospital. The project is fostered by the leading negroes of the community and has the support of all the colored preachers in Richmond.

NEGRO PREACHER CAUGHT BY STATE DRY OFFICERS

Accused of Having Gallon of Corn Whisky in His Possession.

AGENTS RAID FOUR COUNTIES
Eight Men Arrested, Five Still Captured; More Than 3,000 Gallons of Mash Destroyed—Liquor Held as Evidence Against Accused.

Eight men and five stills were taken by State prohibition agents yesterday in a series of raids in King George, Nelson, Spotsylvania and Roanoke Counties, Commissioner Harry M. Smith announced. Inspectors Brown, Palmer, Elliott and Wood led in the raids. Rev. George Lucas, a negro preacher, of Gladstone, Nelson County, was arrested charged with having one gallon of corn whisky and twelve gallons of blackberry wine stored in his home. He was sent on to the next term of the grand jury, being released on bond of $500 for an appearance at that time. The clergyman bears a splendid reputation in the neighborhood, it being claimed by friends that the intoxicated were either for his household consumption or for the administration of Holy Communion, officers report.

Still and Mash Seized.
A 400-gallon capacity etam still seized in Greenway, Nelson County, together with 3,000 gallons of mash. Near a 160-gallon capacity still 1,000 gallons of mash was discovered.

Charged with operating a still in Spotsylvania County, Norman Bradshaw, John Bradshaw, Sr., and John Bradshaw, Jr., were arrested. Inspectors found a twenty-five-gallon capacity still and 300 gallons of mash, and one gallon of whisky in the house.

S. M. Fitzhugh was arrested in King George County, it being alleged that he had a thirty-gallon and a twenty-five-gallon capacity copper still in his possession. One pint of whisky was found. In the same county Alfonso Jackson, charged with storing and having fifty gallons of mash and five gallons of whisky in his possession, was arrested also. A R. Hatchell was sent to jail following his arrest on a charge of having a twenty-five and thirty-gallon capacity still in his possession; also nine quarts of whisky.

Possessed Fifty Gallons, Claim.
Charges of selling whisky were lodged against G. E. Bason, who had nine quarts of whisky and fifteen gallons of blackberry wine in his possession. He was released on $500 bond.

Inspector J. W. Wood arrested Ellice Turner, of Calaway, Roanoke County, on a charge of transporting. He is said to have had fifty gallons of whisky in his possession. Charges of manufacturing were preferred against E. P. Daly, Henry Boman and Page Mills, arrested in Roanoke County. A copper still of twenty-five gallons and two fermenting tubs of mash and five gallons of whisky were found. The west of Page Mills, by Roanoke County officers, assisted by Federal prohibition agents. Sam Robertson, James Robertson and Cone English, of Cross Roads, were arrested also on a charge of transporting. Officers were assisted in the arrest by Federal prohibition agents.

GIFTS TO CITY'S NEEDY SHOWING A DECREASE

Contributions to Ice and Milk Fund Falling Off, Despite Need With Hot Weather.

These are so badly needed by the babies and the sick and infirm aged people in the congested parts of the city, are causing a drop in contributions to the ice and milk fund instead of increasing the amount, which is so sorely needed.

You who today enjoy the comforts of a refrigerator and of the dairy, think of the little sufferers who crave ice and milk. Imagine, if you can, how you would feel if you knew your baby suffered for the lack of these necessities, and open your pocket-books and give. Do like you did during the war—give until it hurts.

Two dollars of yesterday's contributions came from Philadelphia. The day's list follows:

"AIN'T IT THE TRUTH?" UP FOR DISCUSSION

Will Be Subject of Women Speakers at Meeting of the Advertising Club Today.

W. C. A., will be "Ain't It the Truth?" The women speakers will fill the program to within one minute of adjournment, and they are expected to tell some advertising truths.

Miller & Rhoads

Announcing the "Wyeth Edition"

ROBINSON CRUSOE $2.00

Any number of people told the publishers they were foolish to spend a lot of money to produce the finest gift book that a reasonable expenditure could create—a book that would have to retail at $5.00.

Robinson Crusoe was the title they selected. They knew that N. C. Wyeth had always had a keen desire to make pictures for Defoe's classic. So, Mr. Wyeth made 16 wonderful paintings. They represent his best work.

Then they priced the book at $5.00. It is worth it—some say twice that. At any rate, they certainly had good reason to be proud of their achievement.

Not only is the book itself, with its 13 full-page illustrations (some of which are in four colors) a masterpiece of various arts, but the story is one that will never die. It is the eternal gift book for young people.

"But," people ask, "why such a book for only $2.00?" We can only answer that a rather unusual and no less fortunate trade transaction brings them (just these) to sell at the lower figure.

There can, of course, be no more at the price when these are gone.
